DREAMer Flying Issues

(from an undocumented student at Stanford)

If this student is 17 or younger/ in high school he should be able to fly using his school ID. If he is over 18 he should use a valid passport from his home country (make sure its not expired!). Students tend to be hesitant about using passports, but it is an issued government ID and security are less likely to question it. Of course there is always a risk, but it has been done, some of my AB540 friends who go to schools in the East Coast do it on a regular basis, in fact, and have had no re-precautions. Here are some other suggestions if he is using his passport: Try to fly to big international airports (they deal with international tourist and their passports all the time). When giving the passport open it to the page with picture and other info (this can keep them from flipping through it) Carry other things with your name on it, just in case (medical cards, debits cards, etc.)

Dr. William Perez - He is an amazing academic in the field! He is a PhD graduation from Stanford School of Education. He has come here several times and spoken to us about undocumented students. His website is an amazing resource for students and has great research on the issue. Check out Nora's inspiring story on NPR:
